Work has been commenced towards constructing the extension of the railroad from this city into Presque Isle county. The first work to be done is removing the timber along the route, and in a few weeks a large force of graders will be set to work, followed by the track layers and the locomotive. The construction of this extension will prove of great benefit to Alpena, not only on account of the large amount of pine, hemlock, cedar, pulp wood, tan bark, excelsior wood and hardwoods to be brought to this port for manufacture or shipment, but it will open up a large and fertile agricultural section.

M. O'Brien and C. E. Cheney, who were appointed a committee to secure the right of way for the extension of the railroad from this city to the center of Presque Isle county, have done excellent work, and their labors were so successful that the right of way has been nearly all donated. The cases were damages were asked were mostly owing to buildings being on the route, and these, we understand, will be settled reasonably.

In a short time the railroad will be constructed. It will run near Thunder Bay river, for several miles and then extends somewhat parallel with the North Branch to within a few miles of Lake May. Rogers City will be nine miles from the main line.
